Dear Investor

RE: Ballot to change to the investment policy to include derivatives

The purpose of this letter is to communicate details of the proposed change to the investment policy of the Nedgroup Investments Rainmaker Fund (“Fund”) to include derivatives in the management of the portfolio.

As an investor, you can vote in favour of, or against this proposal.

Rationale for inclusion of derivatives

CISCA Board Notice 90, Chapter1, 8 (b) states that a portfolio’s investment policy must provide for the inclusion of derivatives.

Derivative exposure introduced to the Fund will be maintained subject to the limits and conditions of the regulation referenced above, which states that derivative instruments will only be used with the aim of reducing risk, reducing cost or generating capital income or income for a portfolio with an acceptable level of risk or to achieve the investment objective in the portfolio.

We believe that by extending the range of portfolio management tools by including the use of derivative, investors will gain from the manager’s experience and capabilities in utilising derivatives to more efficiently manage the portfolio, particularly in relation to currency risk exposure, market volatility and access to investment opportunities in a cost-effective manner.

For example, the Fund recently started using its 30% allowable offshore exposure. This introduces currency risk in the Fund, which can be managed using a forward or future derivative contract to manage the portfolio’s exposure to foreign currency, thereby avoiding the transaction costs that would result from the sale of the physical offshore holding in a stock and conversion into Rands.

The ABAX Investment Team have extensive experience in managing investment portfolios on behalf of their clients and are well qualified to implement derivative positions in the Fund. The investment team’s credentials and experience are outlined in the following table:

Impact: How the proposed change will affect your investments

We believe that by extending the range of portfolio management tools by including the use of derivatives, investors will gain from the manager's experience and capabilities in utilising derivatives to more efficiently manage the portfolio particularly in relation to currency risk exposure, market volatility and access to investment opportunities in a cost-effective manner. The derivative instruments will only be used in line within regulatory constraints to either reduce portfolio risk, reduce transaction costs or generate capital income. All of this will be undertaken with an acceptable level of risk to achieve the investment objective in the portfolio. The investment philosophy and process that has guided the management of the Nedgroup Investments Rainmaker Fund will remain the same and there will no material changes to the portfolio structure, portfolio objective or investment policy.

There will be no changes to the fees and charges, and you will remain invested in the same classes you are currently invested in.

Effective date for the inclusion of derivatives

The effective date for the inclusion of derivatives in the Nedgroup Investments Rainmaker Fund will be 4 June 2021, provided that the necessary consent is obtained from investors.

Action required

The Act protects the interests of investors on amendments and the Act determines that all investors in the unit trust portfolios affected by amendments must be advised in writing of the details of the proposals and can vote in favour of, or against the proposals.

Note: For a change in investment policy section 98 of the Act requires the consent of investors holding 25% of the value of units in each portfolio and the majority of respondents to approve the change.

Investors will be reassured to know that the Trustees of the Nedgroup Collective Investments Scheme (approved by the Financial Sector Conduct Authority in terms of the Act), being the Standard Bank of SA Limited have formally consented to the proposed amendment as set out in this letter.

Please complete, sign and return by post the enclosed ballot form to our auditors, Deloitte, in the accompanying pre-paid, self-addressed envelope or via email to Nedgroupinvestments@deloitte.co.za. Please note that the form must reach our auditors by midnight on 23rd April 2021. All ballots date-stamped 23rd April 2021 or before will be accepted for three working days after the cut-off date and will be included in the audit process.

What are your options?

Should you not be comfortable with this proposal, you may either:

1. Vote against the proposal;
2. Switch your investment to one of the other Nedgroup Investments unit trust portfolios at no switching fee if we are in receipt of your switching instruction before 4th June 2021, and provided that the unit trust portfolio switched to is not closed for additional investment, or
3. Sell your unit trust investment at the ruling Net Asset Value price, as defined in the Main Deed.

However, on deciding to switch or sell your participatory interests, a Capital Gains Tax event is triggered and must be considered in your tax return.

If you choose not to switch or sell your unit trust investment prior to the effective date of the change, then the proposals as set out in this letter (to the extent that investors approve them) will automatically apply to your unit trust investment.

We recommend that you vote in favour of this proposed change as we believe that the proposal is appropriate for the ongoing management of the portfolio.
